I wrote a post card to ask you & Duncan & Julian or anybody to dine at Hinton House on Saturday at 7, but I rather think it was lost so I repeat this & hope it may manage to get sent. But we live in such chaos owing to the ceiling falling down. John putting his hand through a window so as that I doubt it. And now will just off to Rodmell. Hoping to see you B

Dearest dearest Dolphin,

O what a mercy that you showed like that book! I can't tell you, (this is literal truth) what it meant to me getting your letter this morning.
Nobody except Leonard matters to me as you matter, & nothing would ever make up for it if you didn't like what I do. So it's an amazing relief —
I always feel I'm writing more for you than for anybody: only I can't express this; as I'm rushing off. I have been interrupted by Peter coming. Never mind — I wouldn't say it'd the whole day how happy you make me.
And Lud — what I owe to you!
But I can't write more now, I only send this as an inarticulate Thanksgiving & shall write again to-morrow —

You don't think sentimental, do you, about

Phoby? I had him so much in my mind — I have a dumb grave stell at his Dearest Dolphin, how I adore you, not being whether you like what I write or not with us always.

I'm frightfully interested about your picture.

Dearest,

I have just heard from Quentin. I will ring you up tomorrow at 9.30 on the chance of catching you. I thought he glad of any news you could send — as I dont suppose the caretaker can tell me much. I send I only gave Angelica £1/- when I thought it was £1 — so will you give her this
